Lawyer, port members top new appointments

New faces galore occupied the county's appointive positions after the incoming board of supervisors wound up its first session Tuesday afternoon.

There was a new attorney for the board of supervisors, four new members of the port and harbor commission, a new assistant veterans' service officer, county civil defense director, prison guard, janitor and coalwalk foreman, among others.

And the regular Courthouse force got a $85 a month pay hike to boot. That came on the motion of incoming Board 1 Supervisor Charles A. Russ, III.

Joseph Bonaventura, Bay St. Louis attorney currently serving as judge of city court, was named attorney, replacing the law firm of Favro and Griffin, J.C. (Peck) Mauffray, now Board 4 member, moved his appointment, seconded by Joseph Cuevas of Beat 3 and it carried unanimously.

Ellick Cavanaugh, Bay St. Louis auto parts store operator who had been Beat 1's representative on the port and harbor commission, was named by Russell J. Elliott of Beat 5 for another term on that body.

He was the only incumbent re-appointed.

The Beat 1 appointment went to Harry E. Wilson of Pearl-Lington, New Orleans civil engineer; Oliver Frierson was named for Beat 2; Louis J. Breaux, president of the Hancock County Farm Bureau, for Beat 3; and Gus Elmer of Kila, New Orleans candy manufacturer, for Beat 4.

Edward A. Fayard was re-appointed county veterans' service officer at $200 a month and John D. Rutherford, Jr., was named assistant at $100 monthly. Previously there were two assistants.

Lucien Kidd was chosen county civil defense director, succeeding Chester Favro. His salary was left open, pending a check with state headquarters. Kidd at one time held that position for the city of Bay St. Louis.

On the recommendation of the incoming sheriff, Fred Curet, the board approved the appointment of George Rayburn as prison guard and of Clifton Saucier, president of the Hancock General Hospital board of trustees, as janitor for the Courthouse.

Carl Lador was named foreman for the seawall and Bully Zengarling, general foreman for Beat 5 as well as time-keeper until that post is filled.

On Chancery Clerk Mario Quintini's recommendation, Lila Lador was retained to check invoices at $300 a month and Loida Carver for clerical duties at $125.

Supervisors also interviewed W.S. Goldman, local civil engineer, as a prospective appointee as county state-aid engineer. George W. Wior of Jackson has held that job for about five years.

Reappointments included Mrs. George Anderson and Lynda Tomalich as deputies to Tax Assessor George Holtzmann; Mrs. Carl Fricke, County Home superintendent; O.O. Swords, county agent; John Smith, assistant agent; Mrs. Nellus Favro, secretary; Frank Klein, commodity clerk with Mrs. V.J. Piazza, assistant; and Shirley Shaw, extension home economist.

New county board of supervisors

Supervisors pick Elliott as prexy

Pre-announced plans went according to Hoyle as the new board of supervisors Monday elected Russell J. Elliott, of Bay St. Louis, as its president and Charles A. Russ, III, of Pearl-

Lington, Beat 1, as vice president.

Elliott was nominated by Joseph Cuevas of Beat 3, seconded by J.C. (Peck) Mauffray of Beat 4. Only dissent to his election came from Dolph Kellar of Beat 2, lone supervisor re-elected last year who had served as vice president for the last four years. Elliott's father-in-law, Ed P. Gorte, had served as president when he was on the board of supervisors. He succeeds R.G. (Manny) Hubbard of Waveland who lost his bid for re-election to the board.

Russ was nominated by Mauffray, seconded by Cuevas. His late father had been a vice president of the board. Supervisors, sworn in last Friday by Chancellor Frank Alexander, were administered the oath of office again Tuesday, by Circuit Clerk Lamar Otis after question was raised over the attorney-general's opinion of the early swearing-in ceremony.

Only one change in personnel for the county school system was recommended by new superintendent Eugene Lador at the trustees' first meeting of 1968 Tuesday.

He won the unanimous approval to employ James Cuevas as maintenance man at Hancock North Central over the objection of principal Robert Clapp who contended that the present employee, Twynne Palmer, had done an excellent job and saw no reason why he should not be rehired for another year. However Lador insisted that Cuevas was a valuable man well versed in plumbing, carpentry, electronics and welding and for his point when he argued that other superintendents entering office had virtually changed the whole personnel whereas he intended to recommend no other changes. The job pays just under $4,000 yearly.

After the discussion, trustees voted to employ Cuevas but strongly recommended that Lador consult with Clapp or other principals involved before recommending changes in personnel to the board. Trustee Eric Larson said he would vote yes this time but would refrain from voting about such a situation again.

Trustees unanimously re-elected Edward P. Otis chairman and Charles Hill vice chairman. They also indicated their wish to employ Walter James Phillips for another term as board attorney but Phillips said he would be in Jackson Tuesday but would be present at the next meeting at 9 a.m. Saturday. Gerald Cox, partner of Phillips, attended Tuesday's meeting saying that Phillips would accept the position.

Salary for the new superintendent was fixed at the same level as his predecessor, Robert Lador, the figure mentioned being $768.66 monthly. Cox produced a resolution prepared by Phillips for the board of supervisors authorizing school trustees to borrow $25,000 for purchase of land.

School loan, slow signs are cleared

The 1968 version of the board of supervisors voted Tuesday to go along with the county school board's request to borrow $25,000 to buy two portable classroom units for Hancock North Central School unless the voters petition for an election on the question by Jan. 22.

The old board last month had attached the condition that $14,000 of the total come from dormant bank accounts, Charles Hill, school board vice president, told the supervisors Tuesday that attorneys advised the board could not borrow with "life" attached to the resolution.

He promised that if analysis of the 16 dormant accounts shows any of them can be used for this purpose, repayment of the five-year notes will be speeded up. Without assurance and word that no millage increase is foreseen, J.C. Mauffray, school board vice presi-

Curet tells force

Webre to head tax collecting

Appointment of W. Wilson Webre, county Republican chairman, as chief office deputy in charge of tax collections was announced Tuesday by the incoming sheriff-tax collector, W.A. (Fred) Curet.

Curet said he will separate the law enforcement part of his office from tax collection and he will personally handle the former.

Twelve sheriff's deputies have been appointed. Assisting him county-wide law enforcement will be Eldo Depree, chief deputy under retiring Sheriff Sylvan J. Lador, Jr.; Leslie Dodcaux, Beat 3 Constable; and James Lador who also served under Lador.

Appointed to Pearl-Lington are Glenn Dorr, Joe Bennett and Willie Lee, Negro deputy, Port-Helping Bayou Park and Shoreline Park areas will be Louis Letour and Charles Johns. In Waveland will be Sidney Bourgeois and Kenny Fayard, while Bay St. Louis vicinity will be handled by Bill Carbonette, former city policeman, and Ronnie McCallum, unsuccessful candidate for Beat 5 justice of the peace.

Curet's appointments of George Rayburn as prison guard and Clifton Saucier as janitor were approved Tuesday by the board of supervisors which pays them.

Final action

Reverse airport view, on to FAA

Tong its last official action on a 3-1 vote, the retiring board of supervisors last Friday agreed to notify the Federal Aviation Agency of its intention to proceed with the first phase of construction at the new county airport and seeking an additional $68,300 federal grant.

The motion was by H.G. Dean outgoing Beat 1 supervisor seconded by Jack Lott who is vacating the Beat 4 seat. Opposed was Dolph Kellar of Beat 2, lone carry-over member. R.G. Hubbard of Beat 5 concurred with the majority. Charles Lavinghouse of Beat 3 was out of the room at the time.

To port and harbor commission which is handling the airport project recommended the latter before going before the supervisors. While the port group had declined to act on its engineers' recommendation to that end a couple of weeks ago, Friday's motion by Edward Schaefer, seconded by Dr. A.K. Martinich, carried unanimously. Only absentee was John J. Scaffida, Bay St. Louis member who had tried to get the same motion through previously.

Michael Belter, Jr., Inc., consulting engineers to the port group recommended taking the low bid bid of Yates and Patterson, Inc., on the first airport phase, noting that an additional $68,300 is needed from the FAA to complete the project. The extra money is needed because FAA wants 10 per cent rather than 5 for contingencies and the engineers' reduction in paving depth to 2 inches did not trim costs sufficiently.

Dean argued Friday that so long as Yates and Patterson offered a good price, he could see no reason for holding any longer. When talking of bids was authorized in November, he had indicated that final action should be left up to the incoming board. That was the basis on which Kellar objected. When Beat 5 supervisor-elect Russell Elliott sought to delay the vote, Dean observed that the old board was voting, not the new and the matter carried.

The retiring supervisors approved their claim checks for December and transferred $30,000 from the road protocol fund to the seawall fund to meet its $18,938 worth of bills. Kellar expressed concern this might leave bond fund without enough to meet the county's share of repairing Hurricane Betsy's damage to the beachfront road.

It was also voted to amend the budget for 1967-68 to show gasoline excise tax receipts the same for the preceding 12 months and all other miscellaneous items Sept. 30 in the

Sullivan in Waveland

New Lt.-gov. talks

That leadership, integrity and dedication of state officials at a local level is more important to the government of a country than any other single factor was stressed by Lt. Governor-elect Charles L. Sullivan, in speech in Waveland Tuesday.

Sullivan, guest of honor at a luncheon sponsored by the Waveland Civic Area, of St. Charles Parish, La., said the ocean was to his mind the most beautiful vista he had ever seen. He said he was glad to be in Waveland and to meet the people of the area. He said he was glad to be in Waveland and to meet the people of the area. He said he was glad to be in Waveland and to meet the people of the area.

Three greatest problems facing the nation today, and in obvious disagreement with the President upon many policies, his comments suggest of continuing the fight in Southeast Asia was critical. "It would be more than a great tragedy if we quit now. It would be a betrayal. We must face this responsibility, not only to ourselves, but to the people of the world."

Eye sub-division changes

The board of supervisors adjourned its public hearing on revising county sub-division ordinance until 1:30 p.m. next Monday, Jan. 8, when quorum of retiring board failed to appear. Robt. Griffin, attorney, center, reads draft of proposed changes, creating four different classes of sub-divisions, each with its own type of restrictions. by moved to advertise the supervisors' intentions, Joseph was seconded and the motion carried.

Hill said some of the accounts go back to 1916 and go from one cent to $140. School boards, supervisors and auditors will be asked to determine the original source of funds in hope of clearing the accounts within 60 or 90 days.

At the request of the new 4 constables, Joseph Dobbs, the board voted to install color signs and establish a mile speed limit on the Hancock Road from Rt. 603 to the area of Hancock High Central School, on the Hancock Road in front of Hancock School and on Hancock Road around J. Hill's store. After extensive discussion of gas and oil bids, the board accepted bid of Shell Oil Co. over bid of Standard Oil. Others thrown out as too high.

of Glass Publishing Co. printing legal notices was accepted and the board named National and Hancock as dual depository until better offer can be determined. Bids on other supplies turned over to Arthur H. Hill, assistant county engineer, for tabulation.

The board voted to rent on monthly basis property of outgoing Beat 4. The board also voted to purchase of the county's sports equipment and equipment of R.C. Hubbard, Jr., former Beat 5 member, to house Beat 4 and Beat 5 equipment. Other arrangements can be made. Rental is $95 a month each.

Russell J. Elliott, of Beat 4, is authorized to advertise bids on a power saw, battery charger and air compressor. The board voted to continue $100 monthly contribution to the Hancock Chamber of Commerce from the advertising fund.

A new policy for delegating appearing before the board announced by Elliott as president. He asked all visitors sign a registration book in clerk's office, signifying intention to speak, and they would be heard in order of signing.

Most recent damage on the all road was inspected during lunch and the board resolved until 11 a.m. next Monday it answer the Circuit Court roll call.

City gets forms to apply for drainage loan

Commissioner J. Cyril Glover was advised this week that drainage improvement projects for Bay St. Louis as proposed had been determined to be eligible for consideration under the Water and Sewer Grant Program of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965.

The form letter reply is dated Dec. 27, 1967, and ostensibly is from Thomas J. Armstrong, assistant administrator, region II, community facilities division, HUD, Atlanta, Ga.

Enclosed were two copies of the department's application for grant assistance with instructions on filling out one copy as a draft to be used at a pre-application conference between the agency, the city, if engineer and preferably its planning official.

The city also plans application for federal funds to provide water and sewerage for the recently annexed area.

Who says conformity is the motto of today's young people? Perhaps they feel the need to conform in their hearts, but the tops of their heads--at least among coeds at the University of Mississippi--reflect a wide variety of hair styles and colors.

They're up, down, around, one side, the other side, short, long, medium, straight, curled, skinned back, skinned up, forehead bare, forehead covered, puffed up, deflated, sprayed and unsprayed.

"We may basically dress alike," said an Ole Miss coed, "but we would like for people mainly males, to be able to tell who's who. There has to be some individuality somewhere."

Teen Times

As always at the beginning of a brand new year, we sort of look back and compare conditions at this time in January, 1967. We note Teen Times was mostly concerned with lack of cooperation from youthful readers who insist they enjoy reading about themselves, but are just too busy to submit same.

Barome Drome came to our rescue and has remained faithful, week after week. Sorry we can't say the same about others who sent in items for a week or two, then decided that it's too much like work. We hope she'll keep up the good work, but we'd like more news from Christ Episcopal Day School, North Central and Stanislaus. While on the subject of St. Stanislaus, we've been criticized when news from the Rock band has been omitted; but have no earthly way to know what is going on unless someone comes forth with facts.

Back again to last year: we were rejoicing the demise of extreme, teased, uncombed hair-dos, and by now, they're really all but a fad out of the past. Either long or short, simply brushed tresses prevail; in some instances it's still difficult to distinguish between sexes from a rear view, but most boys have almost civilized hair cuts, and only a few real 'wild-does' cling to beards. So all in all, despite continuing popularity of certain psychological spots, a few rather wacky 'flower-goggles', Hancock County youth come to be headed pretty much in the right direction as the old year vanished into history and a new infant prepares to age 90 years within the next 12 months!

A large crowd turned out for the CYO-EYC sponsored dance at St. Joseph Academy gym on Friday. The Palace Guards from New Orleans played for the affair.

T'aint fair

Six foot, 10-inch Art (Bones) Smith, right, star of Harlem Travelers, uses his height to jump up and push ball through basket while average players like Valena C. Jones coach Willie Bradley, Mo. 44, who plays for Krack Stars, have to shoot for goal. The Travelers defeated Krack Stars 89-82 in exhibition game in Jones' gymnasium last Wednesday but Smith, one of country's leading professionals, said Krack Stars was best team they had played during recent road trip.
